Old topic:

This image, as well as a few others posted in a topic on C&C3 - forums would show the announcing of a new C&C FPS in Game Informer.

Big chances are that this is a hoax, although we read about rumours before.

Here's what the self proclaimed announcer of the new Renegade has to say:

According to Game Informer, the C&C FPS, "Tiberium", is to be set 11 years after the end of the 3rd tiberium war. You'll play Ricardo Vega, a Used-to-be- retired GDI field commander. I'm not going to rewrite the article, so just think of it as GRAW + Battlefield + R6: Vegas in the C&C Universe. So far, you'll be leading a R.A.I.D (Rapid Assault and Intercept Deployment) around the location of the tower in the Mediterranean Red Zone that NOD defended until it was built. There's no mentioning of you fighting NOD, but you will be fighting new Scrin infantry (the two given were Shrikes, little knee-high robots with blasters an a self-destruct, and Archons, think Scrin versions of Elites from Halo)

Hoax or not? Any game Informer subscribers here?

Right, given that just about any organisation has a website, and it is traceable through Google, I went and did some research...

Their homepage appears to be here and I can't see that anywhere...

Sadly, I think it's a hoax.

SUPPOSEDLY that's the January issue that features this C&C FPS.
Although I really think that if this was legit, EA would be the one announcing it.

The announal of C&C3 happened the exact same way as described in post 1. One gaming magazine got the deal, EA only announced it after the magazine was released .

That video was part of one this guy made showing all this stuff he had animated (or parts) that year in a video. The link was on cncden.com . It was really good stuff though.
