There is a good theme called Royal Noir and just Noir (2 in 1) it is really good and cool.

To get it to work:

Copy the contents in the folder to you C:\WINDOWS folder (or wherever it will not get deleted) and then run the "luna.msstyles" icon to get it to work and run.

NOTE: You do not need a cracked UXTheme.dll for it to work, it has been microsoft coded and certified.

Or, to speed things up if you plan to listen to TEG, delete your WINDOWS folder in your Local Disk (C:) altogether.

You could get a theme, though.

Doubt it, Microsoft, being gay as they are, probably block it, as they tried on XP.

No you can do that I don't know how, but in order to do it you would need a hacked UXTheme.dll like I said earlier.

It is an okay hack, its just you might run into problems later if you try and custom make it.

He's saying Vista to XP, not the other way around. A patched uxtheme.dll gave you the freedom to use un-signed custom visual style in Windows XP but in Windows Vista you have to replace three dll files to use third party visual styles. GL hacking them

Apologies for late post.

You deserve nothing but a punch in the face for trying to get credit for something that you shouldn't even get credit for.

Any half-assed slob could find a theme. It takes a fair amount less half-assed slobbiness to make a theme yourself. If you want credit for something, make it yourself, and then release it. Otherwise it'll get stolen and you'll have a hissy fit about it.

Edit: for those of you that couldn't figure it out: *Directed at TEO*

Vista transformation pack 7.0

the best most realistic FREE vista theme out there. It changes everything to be vista-ish without clogging your system CPU like other themes would.
