

Intro

Today is the day the arrow reveals all! In this post, you will learn about the newest (and yet the oldest) development team in Renegade! Your support in this new group is humbly requested as we have learned from our past mistakes and those of others. I now present to you, on behalf of the excellent group I represent, Tiberian Technologies!

Who is Tiberian Technologies?

Tiberian Technologies is a newly formed group, founded in December 2007 by mac and Crimson, who aimed to unite the best Renegade coders, as there are many individual groups trying to achieve similar things. Now, all of the people that created the most widely-used software utilities such as RenGuard, BRenBot, BIATCH, scripts.dll, and Renegade Resurrection are now united into one single group: Tiberian Technologies.

This group is dedicated to eradicate the heretics and restore Renegade to its former glory! Our first step is the creation of a new patch. We hope that with the community's support, we can get this patch sent through to all players as an official game patch. It consists of many bugfixes and an extremely extended version of the old custom scripts.dll, a new map, and a lot of stuff ported over from BlackIntel's projects and Renegade Resurrection.

Patch Info

TT strives to bring Renegade up to the next level. The game we have played and loved for years will be updated to include fixes for many nasty bugs, reduction of lag issues, and even enhanced gameplay with new features.

We've been working for a long time in the shadows to bring you the most important Renegade development in the past 5 years and now we are proud to announce a new patch!

The patch, originally planned as Core Patch 3, contains the following highlights:

scripts.dll 4.0

- built in Anti Cheat (replaces RenGuard)
- automatic downloading of maps and other content
- better compatibility with programs such as VoiceOverlay for TeamSpeak
- countless engine bugfixes and performance enhancements

most prominent bugfixes:

- Blue Hell fix!
- Purchase Terminals no longer broken after rejoin
- The pistol now starts out loaded when you spawn

The repair bays on Glacier Flying and other maps with repair bays now work correctly
You will no longer be killed on some maps if you are standing right next to the weapons factory and someone buys a vehicle
Taking a screenshot no longer causes lag
Using a sniper scope no longer causes lag

Enhancements:

Support for using the left and right side buttons on mice with more than 3 buttons
The weapon back and forward keys will now skip weapons that are out of ammo. You can still access those weapons by pressing the number keys to select the specific weapon
New feature on vehicles that calculate damage points based on last occupant Points Fix - fixes an error in the way points are calculated when attacking vehicles with green health. Against all other targets, points are directly proportionate to damage, but not green-health vehicles due to a coding mistake. This is why, for example, snipers could get illogically high points for attacking heavy vehicles they did very little damage to.
The selection of where you spawn when you join the game/die/etc is now more random

New Maps

"City2" map by Deathlink6.0 will be shipped with the patch

BRenBot and NightRegulator will be updated as necessary to support these changes, and we will work with other bot authors to update theirs as well.

Community Support

These communities have been recognized by TT as the most popular and influential and as such, their leadership has received advance notification of this project and have all agreed to support it and us in any way they can. It will be very important to have these communities and everyone else possible participate in testing this patch in order to convince EA that such a patch should be released officially to all players and made mandatory. This part is essential to the success of the anti-cheat components.

Release schedule will be announced later. There will be lots of public beta testing (several months with various beta builds). We have to get this patch in its final state as stable as humanly possible.. if the entire community supports it, EA can approve this, as it has been communicated.

Scripts 4.0 has been in the works since early January.. with a full force team. It's just not jonwil working on this, but there's alot of teamwork between roughly 6-8 people every day!

I am Brims-AFK, multi-term president of the Buttstories community. This small yet bountiful community has been closely following the rene-political sphere and is elated to receive the news of this update. It is with both a proud heart and a cautious spirit that I come here on behalf of this organization to give my full endorsement for Tiberian Technologies. It seems that as we advance into a bold new renefuture we must be unified in our attempts to beat back the haxing aggressors. But with this endorsement also comes a heavy hand of recommendation.

There are many issues which still need to be addressed as we take these bold steps forward. Most paramount of these is maintaining the dignity and upholding the identity of the Chem Trooper, a sacred and beloved character unit amongst my electorate. Many times I have felt my pulse racing as I executed an early game chem rush on GDI's infantry barracks. Yet these are dangerous times for the noble chem trooper, and their numbers are fast dwindling in the face of overwhelming hostility by snipers and APCs alike.

Another issue of central importance to my community is the absolute necessity of taking the point. In order to achieve total victory, one must be willing to lead the squad into it--Buttstorians have always recognized the power of Alt+2 even among the temptation to Alt+8. For this reason, we urge Tiberian Technologies to take the point. We need the point.

We support the pointfix insofar as it discourages the cowardly of act of tanksneirping, or tanksniping as it is known in this region of the renecommunity. You're either with the tanksneirpers or against them, and we stand firmly in opposition to these terrorists and hope that you will join our coalition of the willing in bringing their movement down.

Once again, on behalf of the Buttstories community, we wish you best of luck in your endeavours. May your games be chem-filled and hax-free!

-President Commodore Rumforger J. Brimsley (Brims-AFK) the Third Esq.

Magnificent! I knew in some form or another that it was going to be "Core Patch 3", but the unification of the greatest Renegade coders of all time is an extremely pleasant surprise.

I have a question though, will all these wonderful engine fixes be available in the popular mods around it? Red Alert: A Path Beyond, Red Alert 2: Apocalypse Rising, Command & Conquer: Reborn, and other mods such as the Dune Mod and Rise of Apocalypse?

What about the shaders? Can you reveal anything on these?

That's a definite yes. All new engine bugfixes and features can and will be used in all the popular mods, since scripts.dll still is and will always be open source.

I'm sure Saberhawk will shed some light into the new shader stuff we've been doing for the past few months..

Beautiful. I figured some of the changes were in the .exe itself, so it would have been slightly difficult to apply these fixes. I'm all for it!

As a member of Bluehell Productions staff this means alot.

Actually that is totally worthless. What I want to know is how your going to get the community to support this so that EA will do it. Here is how this plays out, you have all these servers on board which is sweet. Then you have a player base where about 30% of the players download this. Lets face it this isn't going to get any better of attention or downloads than Renguard, maps or anything else. After a little while servers like Jelly get sick of running at 30% capacity and switch back to the non TT renegade. You are also going to have people that are going to provide servers based on non TT Renegade to fill the gap where the big players like Jelly and N00bstories were for that other 70%. That is a situation EA wants nothing to do with ... assuming they actually intend to follow through on their word. Which to present everyone on your team knows hasn't happened.

Of course I'm just picking easy numbers and using Jelly as an example based on their history with things like Renguard.

luv2pb, I hope that this patch will be backwards compatible with the normal Renegade. What I mean is that both people with and without the patch should be able to join a server but only people with the patch get the new fixes. A bit like RR is now, so I do think it is possible .

I'm pretty sure RenGuard is a well known thing to EA and whatnot. Infact, I'd go far enough to say it's incredibly well known by now. TT Patch will more than likely get the same attention, if not more.

Naturally though, it just needs a push. As it stands, most of the important people seem to support it. Give it a few weeks, and it'll be supported by those who want it. Which I'm sure is most of the Renegade community.

I sense fail already.

This is all good and shit, but EA is EA and I doubt they be interested, you can talk to them all you like, but when it comes to the real work, they will forget about it.

EA already has a history of using fan-made patches when the community supports it and the patch itself is rock-solid. In fact, higher standards than their own patches have to fulfill.

We don't intend to split up the community with this patch. That's why I have always been (silently) opposed to certain projects where a team is trying to re-make Renegade in another engine with the futile hope that everyone will abandon the old one.

As I said before, we are learning from our old mistakes (such as those we made with RenGuard's release) and trying to do it much better this time around now that we are armed with boatloads more experience and knowledge.

EA always helps the community when it comes to stuff like this... especially the C&C community. It is like their baby. (Adopted baby because they couldn't have one of their own)

I support this, it is pretty cool down on paper... but I am still confused on how you're going to start the entire community on this thing. Face it, this is an old game and for all the new players out there none of them could be bothered to download a 3rd party download for something they just felt like installing to see what it's like.

RenGuard is good, but I know many, MANY people who disapprove of it and refuse to download it. If one person doesn't like something, then chances are their opinion will spread to other people. You're going to have a faction in the working Renegade community that has no idea about what is going on.

If you guys can somehow get EA to add an autopatcher in an official patch for Renegade that simply institutes TT members the ability to patch the game when they feel is right, then that would be insane... but I don't see that happening.

To answer Cavemans question, the anticheat consists of several parts. Part of it is improved (because we can also make clientside changes) BIATCH/RR code. Besides that theres a few extra things that weren't possible to do on the server side only.

I won't go deep into it now since its not all finished yet (although alot is finished though) so things might still change.

And WTF is this about?:

Goztow wrote on Sat, 21 June 2008 16:41luv2pb, I hope that this patch will be backwards compatible with the normal Renegade. What I mean is that both people with and without the patch should be able to join a server but only people with the patch get the new fixes. A that would actually make this whole idea fail. Look at the current state of renguard, CP1, CP2 and scripts.dll .. there is no mandatory level aside from the renegade patch from westwoods ftp. (Renegade_1037_English.exe)

For these patches, fixes, anticheats to be a success a mandatory, forced upgrade to play in the online games is a must. Otherwise servers will lack players, multiple versions of updates, lack of forced anticheat, and so many other issues like map autodownloader.

This is why they need the community behind them, so EA takes notice and agrees to release it as an official, forced patch much like the Renegade 1037 update. If this happens, renegade would finally be at a level playing field in all of the servers when it comes to fixes and anticheats.

It is common belief that if the community got their hands on the source code Renegade would be ruined because cheaters would run around everywhere with overwhelming power.

Criticize all you want, Renegade X has never ever wanted everyone to abandon W3D. On the contrary, we released some model replacements for C&C Renegade, and have a surprise coming up that will benefit the C&C Renegade community specifically. We are merely an exonerated mod that wants to bring C&C mode to more people who have never even heard of it. Graphics do not make a game the overall gameplay make a game

Take Super Mario Brothers for example most people still enjoy that game for the gameplay and don't give a shit about the graphics.

And you would be one of the people involved in the people I'm talking about a game is nothing without gameplay.

A game has awesome graphics but innovative or fun gameplay is missing will anyone play it, no(I wouldn't).

A game has fun gameplay but not the best graphics or not the most recent but decent and acceptable(Renegade) will anyone play that? I don't know about you but if it were me sure I would give it a go.

And Renegade is an excellent example of the above statement.

We've gone through a few options but I believe we'll be creating a sort of test environment with test servers and schedule events around playing on these other servers so that bugs can be found and worked out. I know I'm not the only one who runs more than one server so one can be temporarily donated to this project and mobilized and motivated testers can run our fixes through the wringer and try to find any bugs that need to be addressed.

I agree strongly with {SB}Lone0001.

The most important elements to a game in my opinion are storyline & gameplay (not always in that order).

Graphics always come 3th for me, why? Because graphics alone don't make a good/great game. I agree that nice graphics make a game sell well and benefit advertisement, but in the end the quality & lifespan of a game come from a fine balance between these 3 factors, and graphics doesn't always add as strongly to the outcome. And in the end what matters most for a game is how long people will remember it and play it. (which gives an indication to the quality of a game).

I prefer a game with a good balance between storyline & gameplay anytime over a game with good (even awesome) graphics. But ofcours that doesn't mean I don't enjoy or praise good graphics

Look at pong or pacman, how old it that game? And I'm sure it's still as popular as ever (if not even more, given other games based on this one). The later one is even getting a movie of it's own

Very interesting new release.

Looking forward to hearing more details as they are announced. I expect it will be some time until we get concrete news.

Overall this is very exciting as it finally combines most of the strengths of the communities, whereas before knowledge was split up in different silos. That is what I appreciate most about this announcement. The fact that cheats may be conquered again is also a huge bonus.

Keep up the hard work, and I hope that more members may be included in the future!

Interesting. Looks like I'm gonna have some fun coding with my projects for the new stuff.

Only thing I'm questioning right now is you mentioned "Point Fix" as something part of Scripts 4.0.

Will there be an option to disable that or something? And how will that exactly work. I probably missed something or it wasn't mentioned at all but will the new features affect client-side and server-side or is there an option to disable a few things, one being Point-Fix. I can tell you right now, not many really FULLY agree with the pointfix.

We don't intend to split up the community with this patch. That's why I have always been (silently) opposed to certain project where the Renegade X team is trying to re-make Renegade on another engine with the futile hope that it will be bigger and better then ever.

Fixed

On a different note, I really hope this patch will also change the place beacon posture to something that looks like someone is actually placing something on the ground, rather than someone trying to push over some invisible flag pole.

Something that I wanted to see is not there so I will just mention it in case some genius can make this work:

Real Widescreen support. No stretched image when using 16/10 or 16/9 screen resolution.

Currently, not much can be configured. We can add that if it is necessary, but I don't see how you can not agree with the points fix. I have heard no proper argument for not fixing it, in fact the only arguments I heard against it were based on misinformation. If you want, we can discuss it in another topic, there is a good chance that I can convince you.

Some people have been opposed to real widescreen support because it increases the horizontal FOV (and thus giving an unfair advantage to people with widescreen monitors)

It'd mean that the screen isn't stretched in widescreen (16:9 and 16:10) resolutions, and the horizontal view space is increased.

Play windowed. Why should you be able to have a 270 degree FOV just because you have a three monitor setup? The same reasons ("none") apply to having a 180, or 100, or anything nonstandard.

Also this is the part where I laugh at people who kept trying to ask me why Jonwil "quit" when he's such a prolific bastard, doing things for Renegade/APB constantly while also having helped with C&C3 modding.

sort of. But Chronojam, you can also play on 16/9 in a windowed mode... So the explanation of unfair advantage is wrong.

People with a widescreen want to enjoy the game with fullscreen experience without the "fat" aspect it gives. Now if you think we have a too big advantage, use windowed 16/9 or 16/10 mode...

So can it be done?

Edit:

Please keep in mind that more and modre people play on widescreen monitors. This because virtually all LCD's are widescreen. For this simple reason I would say imple,ent widescreen support, at the cost of a little more FOV. This would solve the extra place you have to hit someone/some tank with a widescreen, as it is now.

I agree, and certainly a few degrees extra FOV doesn't matter that much. Or should we have everyone play in low detail too because it is otherwise unfair for those that can't run with everything on high?

No, we don't need to do that, so please fix widescreen support.

If you don't widescreen has the advantage of larger characters

In any case, fixing widescreen is hard because we would need to figure out all the camera math (and all the math related to the fact that you can have different camera profiles at different times. Oh and the code that draws the scopes (regular and scripts.dll custom scopes) would need adjusting too.

Well, if you give as reason that it is too hard/takes too much time, than I wouldn't mind. If you say that it gives an advantage than I do mind, as there are more (allowed) things that also give an advantage.

well, from my point of view RG isnt the problem.

me and others feel more and more ren becoming a little bit boring because only this few original maps are played again and again. cannot see them anymore.

the automatically map downloader is really needed, so the big servers could add those beautiful but never played maps into their map rotation.

Second: The mapdownloader is a integrated part of the whole TT revamp, so we can't just release that early.

shaders.dll and the Direct3D9 code is an integral part of scripts 4.0, it is not going to be a seperate download. However, the features that shaders.dll provides are well tested and cause no issues with older/slower hardware. In any case, they will be off by default.

1) When it's done. Done will be when TT has all required scripts and features. It will be done as soon as possible. Since none of the coders can do this full time, soon can be pretty far away.

2) If you make more detailed models then we could perhaps implement them. Currently there is no one on the TT staff that would be able to do things like this.

Those models where made for the UT3 engine, which is way more powerful than the Renegade engine, so those models will most likely not work.

Any chance that you could fix glass shooting(or just generally shooting through things) and glitching c4? I'm not sure if its been looked into and this is the only topic that I know of to look for what TT is doing, so sorry if this has been answered before.

shooting through things is rather hard to fix I'm afraid. We did fix some things about C4 though; what exactly do you mean by "glitching C4"? If you mean that they become invisible if attached to a vehicle/soldier: that's fixed.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bpTRqkXLhDk> is an example of a glitched c4.. sometimes you can get to a weird angle in first person and repair them but I didn't have any luck(I tried that before taking the video). Sorry for the poor video quality.

I'm not actually sure how to glitch them but I'm sure that someone here knows.. Its definately reproducible, but I think it might be something like glass shooting. =(

That's awesome about the disappearing c4 btw, does it fix it when c4s disappear after travelling a certain distance from their "origin" where they were first placed?

It fixes exactly that.

That unreachable C4 issue is most likely indeed related to the glass shooting; I have looked into it in the past but have not been able to come up with a fix.

I've posted about the c4 glitch before, it is fairly easy to do. I was told the exact same thing, there is currently no fix for it. I am not going to post a video or anything showing me do it, as spreading it would really be worse. It looks like you only want it deleted for the best, so i will show you how to do it in game if you wish.

It also has to do with how high up the mct is on the building, as in some buildings it is higher up. The lower the mct, the easier it is to do the glitch. The agt is the easiest to do the glitch imo, as you can actually make the c4 disappear inside the mct, so that it is not even visible, yet it still does complete damage..

No EWD, it is not. I have made a proof of concept glass shooting fix yesterday though, so if those are related, the C4 glitch is probably solved as well. Please note that the glass shooting fix is only a proof of concept so far; it is unlikely but possible that it introduces other problems rendering the whole fix useless, so I can't 100% guarantee that it is fixed now.

I would like to know how to reproduce C4 glitching, especially to test whether my glass shooting fix actually fixes it. Please contact me on MSN or IRC or something. (nick StealthEye at irc.blackintel.org or irc.n00bstories.com or MSN/ICQ/YIM/AIM contact details from my profile)

Will do, i'm not so sure it is a glass glitch though, as you can actually get it inside a building's wall also, it is harder, but just as possible.

I will make a download-able video, and pm it to you if you wish.

Edit: Pm sent, reply if you received in pm or here please.

You can shoot through a building's walls as well though. But that no longer matters; with the help of HaTe and Tunaman I am pretty sure I have located the bug and can write a fix quite easily. The fix will need client side as well as server side changes so can not be made available separately from TT.

For those interested: it seems to be an issue similar to the "wall lag fix" distributed by BI quite some time ago: the C4 position is rounded when sent through the netcode and can therefore end up in a wall on the client. Like wall lag, the issue does not exist in a client-hosted game such as a 1 player nondedicated LAN game, because the netcode is not needed and positions are not rounded.

i promised BHS (or more like blazer, crimson, mac, EWD and other ppl i had contact with, like and respect but just dont exactly remember) _years_ ago that i wont make another "renguard bypass" anymore. thus including bypasses to _any_ AC made by those people, not only "renguard" of course.

i think i'll still try to improve cheat name removed, so that it wont be detected by this new anticheat but a good AC will detect every cheat which is not patching/whatever the ac-routines. or put simply: "a cheat which promises not to mess with the ac, is always detectable"

Obviously an older post, but if SEye doesn't see it, hopefully someone else knowledgeable will: is that particular issue the reason why bots move perfectly normal in singleplayer but move very erratically in a co-op or similar server?

Could you show a video showing exactly what you mean? I would assume that if what you're describing is netcode related, it should also happen for human controlled characters, because I don't think there is a big difference in netcode. A video or something to show exactly what you mean may allow me to give a better guess as to what's causing it though.

I searched on youtube for a while but couldn't really find anything that illustrates it that well. It's honestly pretty difficult to explain, but if you join a co-op server for even a minute you'll notice pretty quickly what I'm talking about.

Basically, player movement is smooth but movement for bots is very rough. They just kinda slide and "teleport" across the map when they move; it's as if the server sends only one "movement" instruction when the bot could have moved three separate times (as far as the engine goes). It's simply just not smooth at all.

Possibly it assigns a lower priority to the bots and sends fewer updates; I don't think it's related to wall lag/position rounding.

I want to keep the HQ weapons from Reborn mod in my data folder. And some other improved models. Same for the cool nuke and ion strike effects.

I blame the cheat makers!

As far as I understand it. The biggest part left undone is the launcher. Don't take that for a actual fact though, as I just read it that way.

That is correct, some features are waiting for the final launcher, which is afaik making good progress. Perhaps SirKane can give more information on this topic.

Yeah.....

We've only been waiting around for one silly coder to complete this launcher for how long is it again?

I also find it sadening that TT-staff continually dodge the question:

'Can anyone else do it'

I'm pretty sure coders such as Hex, cAMpa, raven, wilo could have a good go at it.

The only answer we get is "The TT team is doing this for free in their spare time... if they have any... people have real lifes... blah blah blag".

Don't get me wrong I completely understand they are doing this out of the kindness of their hearts, for the love of the game, or whatever else... but the game is dying more and more everyday, slowly but surely. The longer we wait for TT to try and "save" it the less of a chance it has, and the more pointless all of this has been.

I personally have given up hope on TT and Ren in general... And yes I know, I am but one person that doesn't count for all... but I know there are others that proolly think the same way.

If you haven't noticed, there has been quite a lot of people with scripts 4.0 currently playing Renegade. It's in beta testing, which means that progress is quite clearly being made. I don't have any information on a release date, but the bug and glitch testing has been a success to date. Hang tight people

This quote may be from 3 years ago, but it still applies:

mac

There will be lots of public beta testing (several months with various beta builds). We have to get this patch in its final state as stable as humanly possible..

LOOL. Everytime I see Hitman's name in the TT section, I can't help but to look. Always make's me laugh.

Though, Hate is right. They have started beta testing, but no telling whenever it's goin to be done. It's been a couple months now, I believe, since they started the clientside beta tests.
