Hey all,

I'm just scouting old game titles to add to our support list. Is this community/game still active?

haha...some games cannot die. Ususally these games have 1 or 2 (or more) tasty features that a player can never get enough off. Games that have these never die.

You can also add this site into your list for another pwnage game Delta Force 2:

What i like about renegade that is it really easy to make a mod for it. Unlike UT3. I tried to make a little mod for UT3, but it was way way hard.

No, bandwidth is fine, it's just that you live more or less in the middle of nowhere. Specially if you look at where most servers are based. That is the USA, and then there are some that are Euro based.

Oh and to the topicstarter, please don't go and host more Renegade servers. Yes it is a great game, but if you look at the serverlistings (HERE FOR EXAMPLE) then you would notice that most servers are empty anyway.

I think we need more servers hosted on a dedicated server(or hosted on a server with good hardware) tbh a lot of servers have SFPS problems, ping is no problem though.

Servers with over 50 players will always have SFPS problems. It's nearly impossible to not have them with the amount of CPU and Ram the Ren FDS needs.

No way it could be worst then TF2 or 100 Tick CSS servers. I'm going to throw up a Renegade server tomorrow on some of our 8 Core systems and see what kind of usage these servers run.

As for hosting, I see the empty server count is extremely high, so probably not a market I want to get into unless these servers are being home hosted or hosted on ancient hardware.

As for the community, you seem extremely active and passionate about this game.

I'll post a test ip when I get a server up.

Thing is: do you have Windows systems, then? Most of us host on Windows, 'cause the Linux FDS was never finished to show on the in-game online listing; it only works on gamespy.

And good luck getting any players to your server for your test :-S. Maybe Crimson could post some info on cpu and RAM usage on the n00bstories server?

Edit: you should grab the game somewhere, it would only cost you around 10 $. Try it out and you'll note why this community is still full of it after 6 years since the game got released. I've been playing it nearly daily myself since 2004.
