When I try to go on multi-player it automatically logs me in and says invalid password. It doesn't come up with the in-game pop up asking me to log in or create another account. I've reset my password, I've looked at my firewall, I've gone on to my information and deleted my account and it still just auto logs me in... I doubt it has anything to do with Windows Vista. Could someone help me please

At the screen with "advanced game listings", move your mouse to the left and click on "my information". There, uncheck "always log me in with this account" and the login window will pop up next time you git "advanced game listings".
