I highly doubt his computer could handle the PC version... My computer is a year old and its just able to play on low settings...

Somewhere in the XBOX Settings you can see some PAL Options etc. there you can change your MHZ and other stuff. Im gonna take a look later.

That's what always happens when you play games on an old TV... I had the same issue, but I just bought an LCD. The only solution really is just to use a better TV.

Well, you can probably get past that specific point by simply googling for the number. I'm sure you'll find a screenshot with the number on it, for example.
