Name says it all. Does someone have any high-res vehicle textures or some shader files which make the vehicles look a little nicer or shiny?

Normal mapped vehicles I made a long time ago:

The Nod APC may look screwed up with the shaders.

Look for the counter that is counting down from 45 seconds, wait for it to expire, then it appears. It will say "Free Download" in gray.

I tried your normalmaps, but for some reason my vehicle skins remain the same, they haven't changed at all.

Yes, I have the shader options enabled.

Yes. I also tried to extract the files from the mix.

Do you have the shaders.sdb file in your data folder? Also, you don't need to extract the files from the mix.

Yes, I have the shaders.sdb in my data folder. Also as I told you before, I tried them with the mix file, and one time while extracting the mix. In both cases it doesn't work.

Have you made sure you have shaders actually enabled in bhs.dll options?

If it doesn't you will have HELL OF LAG!!!!

I know from experience

My old PC didn't support it (new one since 4 weeks though. YAY shaders)

I currently have an ATI HD3850 512MB GDDR3 so I'm like 100000000% sure that my graphics card supports the shaders.

Check your game directory (not data). Do you have a _shaders.txt, and if so, what does it say?

Yes, I have one. It says:

[HLSLnormal_map.fx] Failed to open required effect definition file. << and that like a hundred times more.

Might want to drop this in data then

Note: I looked in the file and the math is horribly wrong, written by me when I really had no idea what I was doing. I might release a fixed version in a day or so.

Thanks for the file, I'll try again now. Even though the math is horrible...If it works, it works. Right?

Edit: Yep, they're working now, looking nice

Yeah, it does work, it just doesn't look anywhere near as good as it's supposed to (as, uh, evidenced by http://i42.tinypic.com/2wnv52h.jpg)

Some of my vehicles and weapons have weird dark spots over them after I put in this new shaders pack.

Ex: http://i27.photobucket.com/albums/c175/r315razor/Screen%20Shots/ScreenShot06.png

Other weapons/vehicles include, other than what is shown in the screenshot, are: the shotgun, proximity C4, and Nod Flame tank.

I dunno about you, man, but that's kind of awesome.

u6795 wrote on Tue, 27 January 2009 21:22I dunno about you, man, but that's kind of awesome. Not if you are in motion. When you change the camera angle, there clipping errors between two seemingly different textures all over the weapons and the vehicles.

Those black spots change their positions when you move so it looks like total crap. And I don't know how to use that shader edit thingy.

How do I return the vehicles to normal?

Turn off shaders (or get rid of the files you installed)

Those issues are because of the crazy ass backwards math done in that old FX file =/

But the thing is though, I originally had a working Mammoth tank, flame tank, and stealth tank before I downloaded this package.

After I installed it with the new shaders.sdb included, the vehicles that where working before, don't any more, bar the stealth tank.

And I can't revert back because I overwrote my other shaders.sdb.

Here's a version of the normal map shader file that I edited with diffuse lighting. I got this code from a book I'm reading so I just added it for fun. There are some extra crap which are not used in the file and those are from stuff on the Internet which I was trying out. Override the HLSLnormal_map.fx in the data folder.
