Exactly the point. Your skins are very sub-par. All you're doing is slapping images onto stuff. There's no real art involved, and quite frankly, they're usually shitty quality anyways (Like why the hell is it mirrored? Kind of annoying).

Work on them.

Shameless advertising is shameless.

Both reek of no effort whatsoever. Try again.

Well Lately that I checked you have released a few bunch of doors and a Nuke.

- Blue Doors
- Havoc Doors
- Best Bud
- Halo Nuke

And to be honest they all look like a quick build. Finish them in a good shape. Get backgrounds for the pictures. Like the white on the Best Bud door do something with that! Also center the Best Bud the loophole for the card is now doubled. Or for those havocs that really looks like a 1 min job.

And to be honest 'I dont say this is true what Im going to say' but all skins you have released lately look like a one min job.

My Tron skins were little more work than this, and people liked them. All I did was draw lines.

Maybe put images on the doors that people would WANT to look at, or maybe try different skins (like ones for some of the maps, like the snow on Under, maybe).

Textures that are just pictures of shit from the internet are fucking retarded and any 10 year old with a pirated copy of Photoshop can make one.

Perhaps you should consider making textures that look like the things they are supposed to be.

For example, when skinning a door, consider making the skin LOOK LIKE A FUCKING DOOR.

Come on guys, don't be to harsh, he is new at skinning and am sure he is learning.

For sure, tell him if the skins are bad or good, but tell him why and how to go about fixing them.

Read the threads. Basically everyone (or at least me) is saying "Stop pasting images from google onto 2d surfaces." That's all the critique you can possibly give this guy.

He's also done about fifty of these.
