http://www.exoduscommunity.com/topic/837-atomix-vs-exodus-rgct/Hi guys,

I'm an administrator from Atomix Gaming. I'm coming to you with a request that our RGCT match be postponed until Sat 12th September, as per the topic on renforums.com. Unfortunately the company that hosted our website was attacked a few days ago, and as such we have lost everything including our forums. We're in the process of setting up some new ones, but in the meantime we're not able to organise our team. To make matters worse we're also battling some server hosting issues, and as such we're doing our best to focus on these issues at the moment.

I apologise for the late notice. In addition I should point out havoc9826 will be helping me organise this tournament, so please deal with him as well should he surface over here.

Many thanks for you understanding,

~ dippy

I was psyched as well for this match all week, until this recent problem occurred. Sorry it didn't work out. Hopefully we'll have our own forums back and can get organized before next Saturday. Also, in case you haven't seen it yet, dippy posted the above on your forum here.

I'm not handling it, but I think we won't be a massive cock and be like "LOL NO WE PLAY NP".

So, I expect that this match could get postponed a week.

Atomix is facing too many issues at the moment internally. A lot of stuff has been happening to us in the last 2 weeks. If I can't get our community's communications back online and our server continues to have problems that we been getting, then I might have to forfeit.

I just can't be bothered with a tournament at this state. Sorry for the inconvenience.

I have a suggestion. Hopefully we'll be back up and running before next Saturday, and able to participate. If not, however, I think it's a better idea that rather than forfeiting, we instead take the bye and allow Tsunami to play Exodus, assuming they're both willing. That'll give us more time to recover, if necessary, and it will keep Exodus and Tsunami from having to wait to have some fun.

That above suggestion sounds fair, given that what has happened to Atomix is of no interested party's doing, and is highly unfortunate.

Bumping because I haven't received a response from either TsuScorpio or Nightma12 (and they've both been on the forum since my post, so either they missed or ignored my PMs and the board's email...) arnyswart has already confirmed that he's fine either way as long as his side knows a team will be there for them to play against.

We have a possible match with Atomix but we need a server location. Any ideas?

RGCT7 (European server) is still up and running. See the server sticky for more details.
