Once you're logged in to this tool, using your forum name and password, you can apply filters to the different mod releases and you can add / remove releases from the different categories. I have done this for a couple of releases already, but it obviously needs some community input.

Check it out by clicking here!

But you'll have to take my word for it. I could show you the source code, but that wouldn't help you much as I theoretically could show you whatever I want.

Goztow is trusted enough that we don't have to worry about him harvesting passwords... if you are seriously worried just don't use it.

Or you can be smart and you know, not use the same password on every site you register on...

I know there's already a sticky in the Release forum, but would it be possible to add a link to the tool in the description of the category on the main page?
