Good-One-Driver, end of 2009 you received a 3 days ban for posting a cheat model in the mod release forums.

Yesterday, you posted a new version of this cheat model in the mod release forums. You're a long time poster so you should know the rules. Moreover, you received a very clear punishment for posting this cheat the first time you did it.

Therefor, I see no other solution but to permanently ban you from Renforums. You are a disgrace to the Renegade community and we cannot take the risk that you pollute our mod release forums any further. You should be ashamed of yourself, tbh...

He has also made "skins" that show you what is inside crates. This I would also consider a cheat considering it defeats the entire purpose of the death crate. He also made crates/boxes emit a beam of light straight into the air like the beacons. Not to mention the glowing proxies. I have screen shots and logs of him posting them if needed.

I've seen these as well, but this is just like...the finishing touch on it all. Most of the others i was just like....er....k, so that's ruining the point of the game, but it's not like it's going to ruin the actual game too much. The beacon and nuke emitters can, and probably will though. Icing on the cake.

99,9% of the skins is fail simply because the creators just finished their first skins and release them all over the internet. And they are pleased to early. (like -> Yay my recolor works!)

Not to be mean Zeratul but your first skins where crap too. (now the cursors you make look nice)

Though G-1-D has a trackrecord for beginner skins.

Maybe it is an idea to change the modrelease section a bit?

what if you dont have speekers? or headset? or soundcard?

Isn't that the same question as "What if you got your PC from a dump?". Low end MBs have had sound cards for nigh a decade and headsets / speakers cost... £5?
I thought they costed around £3 or something, considering they are old.
