Ok so yeah, I haven't played Renegade in like a year and a half to 2 years, and it really sucks. I'd like to get back into it, but my problem is that i've lost my serial keys for my TFD, I have a nick registed, so i wont be taking up slots or anything, but im hoping someone would be kind enough to donate a working serial so that I can play again.... yeah yeah, i know this is completly stupid and its not going to work, BUT, it's worth a try right?

I doubt anyone has a spare key and if someone does, I doubt he/she'd share it.
You can always buy one. It's not that expensive anymore nowadays

If money is no issue, there is probably a place to get it

One of those places is here for 10 bucks
http://www.amazon.com/Command-Conquer-Renegade-Pc/dp/B00005N7YM

Alright, since I started this topic and my next question is along the lines of me needing a serial.... i found my installation of TFD on another harddrive... is there a way to get my serials from there?

If you still have your windows installation on that disk aswell then yes

If you (can) boot into that windows installation, do the following:

Start->Run
The type "regedit" (without quotes) and press enter/return.

In the regedit window navigate to
HKLM->SOFTWARE->Westwood->Renegade

There you should see a key named 'Serial'.
It may be hashed but I believe there is a un-hasher or something around here..
