Though I hated his locked down hardware, tyrannical legal agreements, and evil drive to own every copyright possible... Its still sad to see a fellow tech junkie die.

From my Facebook feed today, one of my friends says:

Quote:Steve Jobs is considered to be the Einstein of our time. I can't believe he is gone...thank you Steve Jobs for the advances in technology that you helped bring to our time. You will be missed.

Kool-aid is strong these days.

So Apple releases a warmed-over iPhone, and a day later its "visionary" CEO dies. Boy, if that isn't poetic.

But he's the Einstien of our times. Fuck Hawking, who the fuck is that? Did he make an iPhone? No? Then fuck him.

Now he can do consulting services for Satan. Maybe Hell will soon be the cool, underground place to go to once your hipster beard grays and your skinny jeans starve your vena cava.

If there's one thing Jobs was Einstein at, it was selling polished turds. Hence all the aluminum.

it would be wise to buy a shitload of apple stock now when everyone is panicking and selling it then a month from now when they realize the company isn't on fire or burned to the ground and the stock goes back up again you can sell it

RIP apple dude

'By signing this pledge you agree that in the event you commit suicide you will be fired.'

Somehow I think that's unlikely to serve as an effective deterrent lol...

Back on topic;

RIP Steve, I might hate your iDevices but it's always sad to hear of someone dying.

"In the event of non-accidental injuries (including suicide, self mutilation, etc.), I agree that the company has acted properly in accordance with relevant laws and regulations, and will not sue the company, bring excessive demands, take drastic actions that would damage the company's reputation or cause trouble that would hurt normal operations."

Was just to protect themselves I suppose.

LOL @ people who didn't educate themselves on the features of the new iPhone 4S and think there's nothing new. The REAL problem is that it doesn't have a new case so people won't be able to recognize the new phone at a glance.

The features on the new phone have me considering moving off BlackBerry and into an iPhone for the first time.

But hey, you guys can enjoy your iPhone and iPad and iPod knockoffs all day long, while cursing the man who transformed the industry for those products.

RIP Steve Jobs. Just proof that all the money in the world can't fix a failing body. Fuck cancer.

what gets me is that steve wasn't even an inventor, he was a very good ceo/marketer apple is still in good hands with jon ive around i've got a MBP because it's easily the best notebook on the market. i don't think steve was too interested in the MBP line these days anyway, so his passing likely won't affect me as a consumer.

crimson, you should wait for that samsung/google announcement. i have a feeling android 4.0 will finally be up there with iOS and WP7 in terms of smoothness/usability. personally, a 3.5" touchscreen is too small and my main issue with the 4S. apart from that, it's a very good phone.
