been on a uk tour for a couple of weeks, just skimming the mudkips/jarhead thread

few points

- jarhead is a sad excuse for an admin. yes i do know what i'm talking about here and yes i am not exaggerating; he's a cantankerous bully
  - mudkips is much worse than jarhead. his comments about jarhead's military service would be disgusting enough even if i wasn't expecting them, which i was. see the Syria thread on the jelly forum; see the sheer contempt he has for the syrian people who keep getting shot and beaten to a pulp by the regime, a regime he enthusiastically praises for doing so
  - iran is a deranged compulsive liar with a vendetta he can't drop against someone who never provoked him in the first place pretty accurate, though Crimson kinda jumped the gun a bit in banning MUDKIPS from here (he didn't even do anything here at first; though of course he started ban evading and shit, which, then it was warranted) at one point Prulez proved Crimson a liar but she removed his proof and claimed he faked the logs

i'm not at all surprised by that move but it saddens me that she's basically our main contact with EA at this point and now apparently she removed her post after his post, so the topic ends there:

My point is that it's a forum for a dead game. You're making complaints about a dead game's server moderator and said dead game's forum operations. These complaints would have been relevant years ago, back when this forum had more than 15 posts per day. What difference does it make getting worked up, at all, over this dumb Internet shit? At this point in the game's life, you should be happy that anyone bothers to do anything for it at all. The damn thing was left to rot many moons ago.

I suppose I could always join in on the pointless bitching though.

People play it. It isn't dead. If it was dead, no one would be playing it.

It doesn't have as many people as it used to, sure. But there are more than enough people for there to still be full matches.

And as long as you can have one full match at any point in the day then the game isn't dead.

You can only play on one server at a time. You can't be in two places at once. So what difference does it make if there is 1 full server or 30?

Yes, I do. The line of work I'm planning to be in is military simulation and synthetic environment modeling. Renegade's dated visuals help provide a consistent development challenge akin to creating work for real-time simulation development. In other words, STFU.

Also, regarding "Crimson's fat ass", she's one of my best friends online. I've known her since the first beta in 2001. I don't always agree with how her server is run, but I don't post shit-fits about what Jarhead does. Think about that for a bit.

To answer your question :-

I don't know how long you were away for so ill run off a few things some of which you may already know.

- 1) TT released a second public beta.
- 2) ACK made yet another version of his self proclaimed Best ren map.
- 3) Xpert destroyed his community that he tried so hard to 'keep alive'
- 4) My offer to host a cw.cc server is still there if you want it.
- 5) Im being sued by the DMCA or so ive been told, Isn't that right Xpert.?

Holy fucking fuck! It's been a while since I've seen anyone really try and step up to me. Let's do this thing.

As stated many times, I actively encourage criticism. What I discourage is "hurr i haet teh map cuz i cant use teh haevoc on Orcas looll" or anything similar to it. If you can prove your point in a legible manner, I'm quite open to changing gameplay ideas. I've even solicited them, too. But wait, you don't read that stuff, do you? Must be too hard.

Hey, those woods you speak of? See, the same thing happens in real life. Ever try driving through the woods? You get hung up on shit. Try using the roads, bro. I know that requires "thinking" (How does it work?) and "logic" but hey, you could even ignore logic and take a stroll through the shallow river. There are three easily accessible, non-forested areas for you to travel through with a vehicle. They make it easier for infantry to survive in the open. They're not meant to be vehicle-friendly. Must be too hard to understand.

I will concede that the framerates are a problem, but only if you're running a system that was built in 2003 to 2005. If you're using a system that old, please explain to me why it's my fault that you feel compelled to play my work and whine about it. I'll gladly read any of your obviously well thought-out responses on the matter!

Liquid: <3

I'm sorry for trollin' you bro. You know I heart you. At least, now you do.

FlaminGunz:

If I call you mad, that means I'm mad? What the fuck, is this third grade's opposite day on Wednesday? "NO YOU'RE MAD BECAUSE IT'S OPPOSITE DAY LOL YOU SAY I'M MAD BUT IT MEANS YOU'RE MAD LOLOL"

I hate to dispel your lovely illusion that my head is planted inside Crimson's rectum, since it's such a tantalizing vision of where I'd love my head to be right now. You know me all too well. Unfortunately, the reality is that Crimson and I disagree on a lot of things, while simultaneously agreeing on others. We're friends. We do that. Do you have friends? Do you have any that you care about enough to stick up for against e-thugs like yourself? Keep thuggin' bro. You're so eloquent.

Also, it would be great if you'd quote what I actually said, instead of what you think I said. I said

"terminal brain illness", not "terminal illness", which is a completely different thing. If you have a terminal brain illness you might as well be in a vegetative state. Or would you prefer to live like Terri Schavio?

Shaitan:

Also, renegade isn't meant to be realistic... i thought you would be smart enough to realize this. nice faulty the map itself isn't even a realistic battle map if its intention was even suppose to be realistic. analogy there. also my laptop isnt from 1980s dood. i bought it a year ago. i dont feel compelled to play it, just sharing my criticism of your map, which you can't accept. i like your diction, though! words like obvious legible and all that bullcrap. have you taken a rhetoric class or something?

Yes, I actively encourage criticism. As I've stated many times. Hey, even from the original post of Fjords: Quote:It was a pleasure working with everyone, I appreciate all of your bug reports and nitpicking. Your help made this become a reality.

Must be too hard for you to bother substantiating your posts with evidence, though. ;-( Regarding "criticism", you're giving me negative criticism. This is fine, it's the way you choose to express yourself. I am giving your criticism my own negative criticism. This is the way I choose to express myself. If you wish to discuss the merits of the work I've designed, and the problems you feel that it has, I am more than willing to listen to you. I am not interested in doublespeak that attempts to disguise shitty criticism with actual helpful advice, which could be used to improve your gameplay experience and help you stop complaining.

I'm not sure what you're talking about when you mention "not a realistic battle map". It's not meant to be a "realistic battle map", it's meant to be a highly detailed (for Renegade, anyhow) outdoor environment that resembles a Norwegian fjord.

I haven't taken any "rhetoric class" - I am simply a person who reads often and uses words to express what I feel, instead of consistently relying upon catch phrases and simplistic language.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Correlation\_does\_not\_imply\_causation

In this case, it's due to several factors: I didn't feel like using Renegade's outdated visibility system. It would have taken up my computer for at least 24 hours. There's some technical aspects to it as well, such as the fact that I didn't combine all of the trees into individual meshes. I kept them as separate objects to cast shadows on dynamic objects. If I make another version of Fjords, it'll have optimized tree geometry along with some other optimizations.

There's more to it than that, though, and I'm not sure what it is. It probably boils down to this being a shitty old engine that doesn't utilize multiple core processors or properly use the GPU/available RAM.

Regardless, the fact that only a handful of people experience "massive framerate losses" is more likely attributable to them having inferior hardware than anything else.

So, in summation:

Quote:FPS is so low..

Quote:Your computer sucks..

Since when do you speak for 90% of the users who play? It's more like a vocal minority of players. I'm not interested in toning down the details I've put into this just so some people stop whining about their old Dell systems from 2003 having problems.

It's 2011, if you can't run a level that was designed using a computer built in 2007 you might want to reconsider PC gaming.

In all fairness, though, I am looking into seeing if the "combined meshes" technique will improve frames. If it isn't the trees causing the problem then I'll have to dig deeper into this.

It's hard as balls to make a decent looking Ren map with any kind of detail without it raping your FPS. The trees look nice, but damn, Ren was not made to handle it.

Liquedv2, yew need to branch out a little on your thinking. I'm sure you'll twig it soon enough, but you're barking up the wrong tree.

The map is budding with new ideas and great game-play, AitcraftKiller just has to get to the root of the problem, it seems to have him pretty stumped right now.

Leaf him alone, he's doing a good job. I'm going to go out on a limb here, and say this map isn't fir you.

Anyway, this thread is really starting to lumber along, all this over some sap's map? I thought the game was dead, but this thread at least is poplar. It makes me pine for the days of yonder.

Anyways is it possible for a different clients to have different versions of the map, but retaining the same filename as so they can play it in a server with everyone else

- HD version(normal)
- LQ version(poo pc people)

LQ + HD people play together

The computer hardware is NOT the problem. I have a rather high end system and my FPS is still around 35 on that map. I play BF3 on highest settings.

It's Renegade's engine- it's not made to deal with higher detail. It needs a lot of tinkering to get it to work reasonably with anything higher than its default stuff, really.

I don't get unplayable performance on Fjords.. but it is definitely poor performance in some locations. Around the 10-20 FPS range.

It isn't my computer because I can play BF3 with nearly all Ultra settings with a smooth frame rate. Granted BF3 can better make use of multiple core technology... I think some stuff should still be optimized to fix the lower FPS areas of the map.

It runs great on my computer, I find that most of the time if I see lag in renegade its when my CPU gets too busy... of course now that I have a quad core i7 with 3.4Ghz a core and 3.8GHz turbo it doesn't happen anymore, but it did when I had an i5 with only 3.2GHz per core.

In all fairness, you are working on an engine that was made back in 2001; I'd suspect that a fair number of the people that still play on the engine might be just because their hardware can't handle anything better.

Perhaps make the trees just go invisible at a certain distance via LOD, some of the older cards could have issues with alpha blended textures... or the grouping trees idea into a single mesh (still with load of course) could also hugely help. Keep in mind after all, a lot of the better games out there have some very aggressive LOD systems, some of them even deploy it on terrain.

I must have hit a nerve there. You just keep repeating the same mentally challenged bullshit.
What's sad is Mr.Liquid is whining on IRC about my 'hit n run' there too.
I'll put one up when I get off of work tonight.

Liquid: Regarding the tree count, the framerates aren't being affected by the number of trees so much as they are by the fact that they're all proxied objects. I may eventually get around to replacing all of the proxy objects with the tree meshes so that they'll run more smoothly. Fjords has been a great gameplay test for the Tiberium Garden project. I need to do another version with the Nod SSM before I can release TG.

I may end up taking out some of the trees just to open up some room for larger tank battles, but it's a lot of fun watching Flame Tanks come out of the woods and burn you if you're not paying attention.

I never said you posted it for me. Do you have issues reading? Or do you just think I wrote something that I clearly did not? Also, see this again:

liquidv2 wrote on Mon, 28 November 2011 15:56 what i said was ACK is making you like a bitch because you try to insult him in numerous ways (including how he looks) without having the balls to post a picture of yourself

he calls you out on it, and you vanish again into the shadows

then you emerge later and repeat the cycle; you must have misunderstood me, even though i explained it quite clearly

Read that a bit closer. Posting your half-ass photo isn't going to change anything. You're still a bitch. You lack substance and, as Arnold would say, discipline.

Gohan that(fight) was done well over a month ago. That server was done in, because(like with all things around here) you guys got bored and pretty much wasted Xpert and Wilo's time in making it.

You know, I had lost the log file for that one-sided conversation we had. The one I mentioned where you spent 30 minutes bad mouthing St0rm, how you were going to do all sorts of terrible things in retribution for them opening a server that would take away players from your server or other servers, etc...

My paraphrased recollection of what you said to me that day was giving you the benefit of the doubt; it's a shame that you're so rage filled that you'd attempt to destroy a gaming server because you have absolutely nothing positive to contribute to this community at all.

Purely out of curiosity, what compels you to stay in a place where most people see you as a washed up middle aged child?

DerWeaselAnyways, WoT 0.7 has been released, bringing bug fixes and new features. Included in the update are camouflage paint jobs you can put on your tanks, and 2 new maps (Marsh and Fjords, he he he..). So if you haven't been on lately, download the update (1.1 GB) and see how it is.

Alphast0rmFjords!?!?!?!?! I think I have seen enough Fjords for the past few weeks.
Nice post btw!

liquidv2Fjords? you're fucking serious? i'm reinstalling that game right now; you can run over any and all trees i've been waiting for this day for far too long

That made me smile. It was buggy enough though, I don't think it could handle tree input.
