I downloaded the following:

"The Tiberian Technologies 4.0 Beta Client
The client patch with the TT scripts. Adds a whole lot of new things like automatic map downloader and seriously improved anti-cheat measures. The installer removes old scripts installations and other mods like RR, because these are incompatible with TT, due to various technical difficulties. Don't worry though; most features of those are also included in the TT scripts.
Although we have carefully tested this release, it is still in beta stage and thus may contain bugs.
The Tiberian Technologies client installer – 4.0 beta 5"

I let it do its thing, and then I proceeded to get on to play. Little did I know I couldn't anymore. :/

The advanced listings have nothing and the XWIS thingy says I have an "incorrect password"

...wut do?

The above may work. Also, if the installer asked for your serial and you skipped that step, then that is likely the problem. You can still enter your serial by installing TT again in the same location.
