I am sure Renegade would not be where it is today without the hard work of all the programmers on the scripts team (myself included).

Totally agree and support this statement. You and Danpaul just to mention the top two that stick out in my mind as being key to us still being here. I've told you both before I very much appreciate it and I hope others do too.

Thank god for Westwood! Renegade and it's leveledit pretty much acted as a platform for creating and expressing our creativity in gaming for people who didn't have university degrees in Programing! Renegade truly acted as a platform.

Question for people, do you relate to me in this sense, you know how everyone has become creatively into minecraft? did any of you have the reaction of not being into minecraft because you can create so much more incrikittly with Renegade epecially with better graphics and creative options involved?

that's why i couldn't get into Minecraft, because modding with renegade has way more in depth capabilities especially with renx(2001 3dsmax) etc?

There is a ton of content for Renegade compared to even many more popular games.
