The forum was updated to a new version but there may be some small problems that we did not see during testing. Please post them here if you encounter them so they can be solved.

smileys from menu doesnt works - arent displayed in a post like a bottom also cursor move before them in a editor.

How switch from that quick reply editor to full without previewing message? I think it wasnt enabled/implemented on old forums.

There is a problem with webpages being cached.

For instance, in the other topic, if you've viewed it once before, then go and view it again, newer posts won't appear, till you enter the topic, and press refresh.

For example if I navigate here, which isn't a post itself but rather the forum, this is what I was seeing, which is out of date, newer posts have happened since.

https://www.renegadeforums.com/index.php?t=thread&frm_id=1&

But after a refresh

This is also happening on posts themselves.

Using OperaGX.

For instance, even though I have just posted here, I cannot see it!

Prevent .php files from being cached I guess

The first post of a user needs to be approved by a moderator (for the moment that would be me :p) before it is displayed. This is an anti spam bot measure.

For smileys: I managed to understand the problem. It adds a space before and after the smiley. When you insert two smileys, it has two spaces between them. And then it will not show correctly. I managed to change this behavior in the "all smilies" list by removing the space before the smiley and keeping it after the smiley so whenever you add multiple smilies, there will never be more than one space between them. But I did not manage to change it for the smiley shortcuts because it is hard written in the php code. I did try to correct this code (on development version) but I think it's included in multiple places and sadly i did not manage to find them all. As this little problem is not really a big problem, I'm not going to put more effort into it. I did report it to the people maintaining the forum software, though.

I disabled the quick reply. It was not enabled on the old renforums so I guess we do not need it now either.

It was already configured so you can edit your own message up to one hour after you posted.

Tagging a user is not a feature we have for the moment.

Looks like file uploads in the "Mod Release Forum" are broken, I've tred a few file uploads under the 65.536MB limit and I just get this message:

We have good hopes the e-mail is now accepted by gmail. We'll look into the file uploads.

I solved some more css problems (quotes and forms)

Firstly, well done! I was quite sad for along time that much of Zunnie's life was lived through this platform and that it had been lost. If for no other reason than that, I am incredibly grateful that the forums are back.

Secondly, I couldn't reset my password as the database didn't have a record of the email address I used. I'd very much like to access my actual account - reborn.

Give me a heads up when they're solved, I'd like to change my map uploads from using one drive to the forums that way it doesn't rely on me not accidently deleting some file.

I tried uploading always4.zip (53.2MB) to the mod release forum which claims it supports ~65MB and I got:
