30. Remembering that Pong, the first home video game, came out in 1975, I realize I'm just on the edge of the first generation to grow up on video games. (See <http://www.classicgaming.com/museum/pong/> for a funny story about Pong's first night as an arcade game in a bar.)

I also can't help but think of the "King of the Hill" episode where a bunch of teens whup up on Hank and his pals in splatball, until Hank & co. use some old tricks to settle their score. Sometimes you get owned, sometimes you own. With any luck, I hope to be playing video games until I get old and can't see the screen anymore.

An immediate correction: Odyssey, not Pong, was the first home video game system. Pays to read the whole article...

Almost. I'm 23 (October 24, 1979) and Blazer is 34 (September 25, 1968).

The reason Blazer didn't give his age is because he always forgets what it is. (being old does that to you)

When I read these posts, I realized..."wow...I'm older than alot of people playing"...then I read on further...I was wrong!!! I think it's good for the older folk to be owned by teenagers. That'll teach them when they say, "You need to respect your elders." Well...how's virtually killing you for respect??? LMAO. I don't really understand how a person nearing their 30s/ have reached their 30s can have time to play an online game. I think it's cool though...goes to show you that us teenagers aren't wasting our time playing games.

BTW....I'm 16 nearing 17 (Wednesday...5 days and counting...)

Abusing animals is one of first signs of insecurity.

i dont abuse animals i actually like animals very much but his cat crawled into my parents car and scratched the leather all up and then it freekin attacked my friend and he now has a scar on his face and no he didnt provoke it, it also drives my dog insane all the time and ripped up my brand new pair of Etnies(really nice shoes).
