As whitedragon mentioned, I have run a test teamspeak server for some time, but it's just a test server run on a cable modem link.

I am in the process of setting up a nice server on one of our dedicated hosts, I will announce it soon.

The current IP is 38.115.148.200

It should soon resolve to teamspeak.n00bstories.com.

<--- First test subject.

I was forced into a passworded channel last night, think about it: If i was on Nod, i'd be forced to go to the Nod channel. If i leave, i don't have the password for either.

It's gonna rock.

YAY! Perhaps when it works I'll actually go out and buy a new mic instead of sticking it together with tape every time I want to use it.

Or I could carry on being a cheap bastard.

By the way, teamspeak.n00bstories.com will now connect you to the server. You should use that address instead of the IP so we can re-direct you if the server moves.

Get it from HERE!
Connect HERE!

I am stuck with these USB speakers at the moment as I have no soundcard. The sound isn't that bad considering there USB but I really need to get some sound card as it's a pain to get them working in some programs. Can't even plug a mic into them.

Everytime I connect to the teamspeak server, I get an error. It says It got a bad responce from the server?

Is there a password or something. I have only used teamspeak once before, and had to have my hand held to get it working.

Is there something I am missing?

I think that means the server is running a newer version of TS than you.

Thanks for the help!

I have a registration question for the n00bstories/Renforums TS server.

I registered my name (frijud) the first time I logged in. It changed the letter after my name from U or R. Yesterday I logged in and it again had the U after my name. When I tried to register my name again it said that that name was already in use.

Is there some setting that I am unaware of that will allow me to register my nickname? This may come important one Blazer gets the TS utility out.

Thanks!!!
