
Subject: Definition of a citizen, according to "Starship Trooper"
Posted by KIRBY098 on Fri, 21 Mar 2003 15:04:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I really like the point of view on this, expressed by the screenwriters.

"A citizen is someone who makes the survival of the human race, his PERSONAL responsibility."

I believe that that is the core issue of what makes a U.S. Soldier/Sailor different than a pacifist. Taking personal responsibility for what happens in the environment he lives in, and the world his children live in.

Subject: Definition of a citizen, according to "Starship Trooper"
Posted by NHJ BV on Fri, 21 Mar 2003 16:30:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I see the words "US" and "environment" in one post...?

Caring about the world can go by other means than military.

Subject: Definition of a citizen, according to "Starship Trooper"
Posted by Walrus on Fri, 21 Mar 2003 17:42:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I think the original book had a better version of that speech. The film was just crap.

Good point though.

Subject: Definition of a citizen, according to "Starship Trooper"
Posted by K9Trooper on Fri, 21 Mar 2003 21:53:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

NHJ BVI see the words "US" and "environment" in one post...?

Caring about the world can go by other means than military.

:rolleyes:
