cough cough *CRAP* cough cough maybe if you dint use the same picture over and over you would have a more border color texture instead and have the pictures in the windows then it be good, but now its not.

how do you make AIM skins anyway?

Welp assuming that you want strait out truthful thoughts.... It over all sucks. The im window background is good but the rest of it blows. I have some that i made a long way back if you would like to see them i will post them in morning prob because they arnt on this computer. I just dont understand how you couldnt get any other pictures that that it looks like u just didnt look because there is pictures everywhere man... keep tryin ull do better

Well well...

You have to use a stretched image on the left, those two Mobiuses really don't look good. It's hard to find a stretched image that looks good though, maybe a picture of Ion Cannon beam would work. The message area looks pretty good with almost any image as it's in the background. On the right you have to use somekind of tileset instead of those Havocs, or then find a symmetrical image so that it looks almost somewhat right. And the edges of the buddylist are white, which really isn't that good.

For what it's worth, I did make a Renegade AIM theme last year.. it was posted on CNCDen for download. Bear in mind the time passed since then.. I could do a lot better now if I put forth the effort. If you want your theme to look good..

- 1) Learn Photoshop. It is your friend.
  - 2) Consider adding interactivity using HTML.

A good designer, such as I know Taximes to be, will spend more than 4 hours making something. I would naturally spend a couple days perfecting the colors, blending, and images used in the creation of any theme; I never rush to get it released the day I announce it.

Thanks, I appreciate the compliment

I have a "working" version now (ie - At least some form of all the images finished) but I'd like to touch it up.

Plus, the FTP that I upload my files to isn't working at the moment.
