Subject: Website layout
Posted by ohmybad on Sun, 05 Oct 2003 18:18:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The pic explains what I want to do, But how do I do it in dreamweaver mx?

Subject: Website layout
Posted by zerk on Sun, 05 Oct 2003 22:38:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Lmfao your joking right?

Subject: Website layout
Posted by z310 on Mon, 06 Oct 2003 00:26:42 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

zerkLmfao your joking right?

whats so funny....??

Subject: Website layout
Posted by DarkDemin on Mon, 06 Oct 2003 01:57:55 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Download photoshop and use the slice tool to make the editable sections and I suggest you download Dreamweaver MX 2004

Subject: Website layout
Posted by lmdgr8one on Mon, 06 Oct 2003 02:04:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

zerkLmfao your joking right?
Hush newbie

Subject: Website layout
Posted by ohmybad on Mon, 06 Oct 2003 13:54:12 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

DarkDeminDownload photoshop and use the slice tool to make the editable sections
and I suggest you download Dreamweaver MX 2004

Ok, I already have photoshop and dream weaver mx. So what I need to do is slice all the pics and make them one image?

Subject: Website layout
Posted by DarkDemin on Mon, 06 Oct 2003 14:23:17 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Slice them up and put them together in Dreamweaver...

Subject: Website layout
Posted by General Havoc on Mon, 06 Oct 2003 15:40:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You lave them as they are as seperate images then bung them into a HTML table. You probably have to set some of them as a tble background image if you wish to write on them.