Who knew I'd have to do this twice... We lost Lynne today to lung cancer. She took a risk and had dangerous surgery, but died a day later from internal bleeding. She is truly a good soul and a lovely person, and I know I'm going to miss her. I'm not the only one, either. If you have an account on The Pits, please post here. And Trey, if you're still out there, find Lynne and make sure she reads our goodbyes.

Aircraftkiller, who is Lynne's boyfriend and more... is playing songs for her on the radio, so please listen in and/or visit us in IRC.

It will not let me register so I will put it here. I have seen here in a few games but did not speak with her. I would of liked to at least have spoken to the person, be it as it may. She will be missed and we all know Trey will help her out.

Those who have fallen, we shall remember, those we remember are those who have fallen. The names of the fallen will live on in memory and never leave our hearts and our minds. Tears were lost today as well as a friend, a loss of a truly good person who left this world with a tragic end. We will never forget you, Lynne, we will never forget you.

To see our best friend lie in the bed
to watch her in pain
just kills me to death
Why God ever did it,
I don't know
But I wish I could turn back the hands of time
and turn off the show
Before she almost wasted her life
and left us here to cry
Before she through it all away
and left us here with nothing else to say
If only she knew how much we care for her
If only she knew that we always need her there
Maybe she wouldn't have felt so lonely and afraid
but felt loved and happiness
And I hope one day she will understand
yes.....I pray

I dont have access to the pitts. can someone pass this on for me.

My condolences go out to Lynne's family and to Ack. I am sure Tery will take her in like he did many of us. May her trip be save, and have her stop by once and a while. She will be truely missed.

My deepest condolences Jon...

I know its next to impossible to grasp a loss like this, I never met Lynne, but I'm sure that she had to be one in a million... I know that this is a perfect way to simply blow a person to bits, and throw them into a pit of depression, don't go there Jon, mourn, but don't give up in life...

God bless you Jon, he's there all the time, even when you hate him, or if you don't believe in him, he's there and willing to help you through this.

I'm Sorry.
I tried typing this out for two hours.
Still got nothing.
Guess im...speechless? not that people have to make speechs to seem important and such.
I acctually signed up on the Renegade Public Forums because of this...
Okay here goes...

I didn't know Lynne, and i dont really know Aircraftkiller all that well...
I know she played Renegade, since i remember seeing her in some games.
But no i cant really say i knew her, and i cant really say i know Ack.
So why am i posting here...? maybe, Maybe its because i feel sorry, because i know how it feels to lose people.
And maybe its because im just an overly emotional forum-twit...but thats just me...

I always get sad when i hear that someone died, i was depressed as hell when Trey_D died, since i remember being in a game of Renegade with him, repairing his tank, and he said "Thank you" that always makes a person feel appreciated when they are told "Thank you" even if its just "ty" it still goes a long long way, and even if the other one was just saying it to be kind, it still means a lot.

Well look at me, im all weepy here, and such...

I think, people...just everyone share somekind of connection to each other, and when someone close to someone dies and you hear about it, you feel sorry, and such.
I mean i do not know Ack that well (at all), and i didn't know Lynne, but i still feel sad.
Maybe its just me, or...Whatever...i just do feel sad because Lynne died, and i do feel sorry for Ack since he lost someone close to him, and i do know what that feels like, and any fucktard who comes in here on a warpath because they dont like AircraftKiller, Screw them, if they post here, hell-bent on sounding cool, and hip and dissin' Ack, i will personally tear them two new ones with one Big ass sword of Doom.

(And screw my typing skills)

This is what I wrote on the Pits forum, so bear with me here.

Umbral927This is a quick poem I wrote in her memory, after I had a haunting dream when I fell asleep at my keyboard. I was reading her blogspot, when she was commenting on the dreams of her mother beckoning for her....this time, she was beckoning for me...

In anycase, here's the poem:

Anthony ClarosIn my Dreams

The wind shakes the leaves
as the sun disappears in the obscure horizon
I think of her, her radiant smile that illuminates
the world, her heart which could hold the love of all humanity, the eyes that sparkled with the joy and friendship of a mockingbird's lullabies
I shall only see
In my Dreams.

The spirits you lifted
the people you touched
the companionship you provided to those in need
Shall never be felt again
I hope they can see you
as I can see you
In my Dreams

The taste of salt in my mouth
is the aftertaste left from my flowing tears
After losing you
You put up a good fight against unsurmountable odds
but now, the only place I can feel the warm glow of your presence is
In my Dreams

Jesus, I'm sobbing as I type this. Excuse me while I get a tissue.
